

VICTORIA EUGENIA

I am Victoria Eugenie of Battenberg, granddaughter of Queen Victoria of the United Kingdom and Queen Consort of Spain from 1906 to 1931, through my marriage to King Alfonso XIII. Throughout my life, I have played a fundamental role in the institutional representation of the Spanish Crown and in promoting social, health, and humanitarian initiatives.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

I received a private education befitting my social standing, focusing on:

European history and politics

Languages (English and French; I later became fluent in Spanish)

Cultural and protocol training

Religious education (Anglican by birth, I later converted to Catholicism before my marriage).

WORK EXPERIENCE

1906–1931

I performed official duties representing the State, engaging in international diplomacy, and sponsoring charitable and healthcare institutions, particularly within the Red Cross and nursing.

1914–1918

Promotion of healthcare initiatives during the First World War

I actively supported healthcare and humanitarian aid projects.

1931–1969

Institutional activity in exile

I maintained a symbolic presence and representation of the Spanish Royal Family, continuing my involvement in social work and international relations.
